My two main objectives for the week were to keep reviewing old stories that could potentially be published and send my message for the holiday letter being sent to writers.

I achieved these objectives: yes X no partially

Explain how you achieved or why you did not achieve your goals. Be specific.

I started reading and sorting through the stories/authors who could use revising and potentially be published as an official PJP story.

Describe the work you personally performed and observed.

I went into one of the two folders of submissions (evergreen folder) and looked for stories submitted before July 2022 and looked for good stories that are either ready to go or could use one more pass at revising.

List the names and titles/positions of all the people you directly worked with this week.

Describe any new skills or concepts you learned or important observations (about yourself or others) you made this week.

Same as last week, I learned how to skim through stories while still being throughout as there are a lot of submissions in the folder from the past couple years.

Describe any significant experiences, achievements, "aha" moments and/ or roadblocks you had this week.

The most significant experience was seeing the shift as we prepare for the holidays.
